Notes of 1983

Our Nation

- Ash Wednesday bushfires in Vic and SA resulted in the loss of 72 lives and the destruction of more than 2 000 houses.
- Election for federal parliament; Labor won office. Malcolm Fraser resigned from the Liberal leadership and Andrew Peacock was elected as Party leader. Bob Hawke's ministry sworn in.
- Dick Smith completed the first solo flight around the world in a helicopter.
- Electronic funds transfer at point of sale (EFTPOS) launched by Westpac.
- Cliff Young, aged 61, won the inaugural Sydney-Melbourne foot race.
- Australia II won the America's Cup (the first time in 132 years a non-American yacht has won).

Our State

- Qld state election: increased support for the National Party and subsequent defection of two Liberals allowed the National Party to govern in its own right.

Our Capital City

- The first of a series of riots took place in the 100-year-old Boggo Road gaol.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- "Lollipop Ladies" commenced supervision of the school crossings.
- The Mothers' and Friends' Club provided craft classes for children.
- A very successful fundraising year provided various items for the school.

Pet Show 1983.

Notes of 1984

Our Nation

- Medicare scheme began operation.
- Advance Australia Fair proclaimed as Australia's official national anthem and green and gold as Australia's national colours.
- One-dollar coin went into circulation.
- Royal commission into British nuclear tests in Australia between 1952 and 1963 began hearings in Sydney. (Sittings in London began 4 Jan 1985.)
- Compulsory classification of all videos introduced.
- Wallabies Rugby Union team achieved the grand slam, beating England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland, and also the Barbarians.
- Commonwealth and State anti-discrimination legislation became operative.

Our State

- Rich area of 15-million-year-old fossils discovered on Riversleigh cattle station, about 200km north of Mt Isa.
- The trawler Vigillete capsized off Stradbroke Island, after its nets fouled on the seabed.
- Protestors blockaded a road being built by the local council through lowland tropical rainforest near Cape Tribulation. Conservationists feared construction of the road would irrevocably damage the forest and the rare fringing coral reefs and lead to the development of the rainforest for real estate purposes. The Australian Heritage Commission subsequently nominated the whole of the wet tropics for inclusion in the World Heritage List.

Our Capital City

- Joh Bjelke-Petersen was knighted in the Queen's birthday honours list.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- Mothers' and Friends' Club disbanded due to lack of support.

John Rayner, P&C Member 1984 to present

I well recall my first Annual General Meeting. Whilst it seemed a great idea to show some interest in the school, it didn't occur it me that I might actually be elected!

P&C elections I quickly discovered are not popularity contests, merely a grim search for volunteers. Having accepted the position of Secretary along with Denise Robinson, President and Allan Kirkwood, Treasurer, I quickly learned what it was all about. I was to serve two terms as Secretary and one as President. Regarding other members of the P&C, I especially thank the late Marie Hartley and her tireless efforts on behalf of the school.

The then Principal, Mr Herb Huth, was ably assisted by his teaching staff of whom Bev Michels, John Rhodes and Judy Jordan often attended meetings.

We were fortunate in those so-called dark days of the pre-Fitzgerald era to be able to call upon our local member Don Lane MLA for help in furthering the needs of the school. Don was able to facilitate many matters large and small and I remember him with great affection. New Farm in the 18 years that I have lived here has under gone profound change and continues to evolve especially now. Mostly gone is the boarding houses and budget accommodation of the past. It seems every square inch is being transformed and developed.

Back then with traffic calming still in the future, speeding vehicles in James Street were a particular concern. Parking was less of a problem as Hawthorne Street continued through to Heal Street. Unlike other schools we did not have an oval, which is quite remarkable considering that in the early days of the school, enrolments were around 1,200 pupils.

It was decided by the P&C Committee that with the able assistance of Mr Huth and Don Lane we would present a case for the closure of Hawthorne Street and the acquisition of the houses opposite to enable the creation of a school oval. I think it is fair to say that it was a bureaucratic nightmare to achieve such an outcome. Around this time it had been decided that a proposed major access road leading to a new river crossing would not pass through New Farm. In the prevailing climate of greater liveability for the inner city, there was support for our proposal culminating in the oval we enjoy today.

I am glad to have been part of the school's history at this important time.

One constant has been the atmosphere and general high standards of the school, which I feel sure, will continue into the future.

Year 7 1991.

Notes of 1991

Our Nation

- Heart transplant pioneer Dr Victor Chang was murdered.
- Paul Keating became Prime Minister.
- Sir Terrence Lewis was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment on charges of corruption.
- Dame Roma Mitchell became the first female State Governor in Australia.
- Christopher Skase declared bankrupt with a personal debt of $170 million.
- Australian Republican Movement was launched.
- 'Treaty' by Rock Group Yothu Yindi became an international hit.

Our State

- Qld introduced land rights by enacting the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Land Act, which transferred reserve lands throughout the State to Aboriginal Trusts and allowed for claims on vacant crown land.
- The trial of Bjelke-Petersen began. A hung jury 10-2 meant that the former Premier of Qld was found not guilty of perjury on 19 Oct. On 30 Oct, special prosecutor Doug Drummond withdrew the other perjury charges and announced no re-trial.
- A study of lead levels in children in Mount Isa found that 178 of 899 children tested had blood lead levels higher than the maximum acceptable level set by the National Health and Medical Research Council.

Our Capital City

- Roma Street Forum was renamed Emma Miller Place.
- The Roma Street Goods Yard was closed.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- School oval completed; children planted 30 trees around perimeter.

Notes of 1992

Our Nation

- The Federal Court handed down the Mabo decision.
- Qantas purchased Australian Airlines.
- Optus Communications $100 million satellite was lost in space.
- Artist Brett Whitely died.
- Australia won seven gold medals at the Barcelona Olympic Games.
- One and two cent coins were withdrawn from circulation.

Our State

- In the so-called Mabo case involving a claim of land rights on behalf of the Torres Strait Islanders of Murray Island, the High Court ruled that Australian law must recognise that indigenous peoples have owned land according to their laws and customs before and after European occupation. The Court ruled that Australian law could no longer presume that prior ownership did not exist before occupation, and all judges considered that the principles of the decision were applicable throughout Australia.

Our Capital City

- Labour re-elected.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- Enrolment numbers continued to decrease resulting in staff losses.
- Two Hawthorne Street properties adjoining the oval were officially passed over to the school.
- NFSS was one of the first schools in the region to take part in the Collaborative School Review.
- $19 020 in funding was received from the Special Program Schools Scheme. Five main areas addressed were: Excursions, Expressive Arts, Computers, Manipulative Materials and Camping.
- Implementation of After School Care.
- A major overhaul of the tuckshop resulted in increased usage and revenue.
- Introduction of a new school uniform.

Year 7A 1993.

Notes of 1993

Our Nation

- The Federal Parliament passed the Mabo legislation which gave Aboriginal people the right to claim native title.
- All references to the Queen were removed from the citizenship oath.
- The plastic $10 note was introduced.
- Fred Hollows died.
- Australia's third domestic airline, Compass, went into liquidation.

Our State

- The Federal Government gave the go-ahead for the development of a 44-hectare tourist resort and marina at Oyster Point, on the Hinchinbrook Channel near Cardwell. The resort was widely condemned by conservationists because of the possibility of degradation of the channel and its seabeds, where the endangered dugong is known to feed, and the possible effects on two World Heritage Areas.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- Expansion of Community Liaison - the school was used for Chinese Sunday School, Italian school, Maltese school, Mandarin classes (TAFE) and Learning for Pleasure Classes.
- School improvements: adventure playground repairs, landscaping program, school uniform policy.
- Slowly declining enrolments resulted in the change of school classification and loss of staff. Principal's status changed to Teaching Principal. Submission to Education Dept for flexible staffing but only temporary relief granted.
- First co-operative part-time teaching team in operation.
- LOTE introduced to Year 6.
- Judy Jordan retired after teaching at NFSS from 1965 to 1993.

Notes of 1994

Our Nation

- NSW MP and anti-crime campaigner John Newman was shot dead.
- Eight digit telephone numbers introduced.
- The first non-union enterprise agreement was ratified.
- Vietnam veterans granted the right to apply for compensation in relation to exposure to chemical defoliants like Agent Orange.
- Allan Border retired from international cricket.

Our State

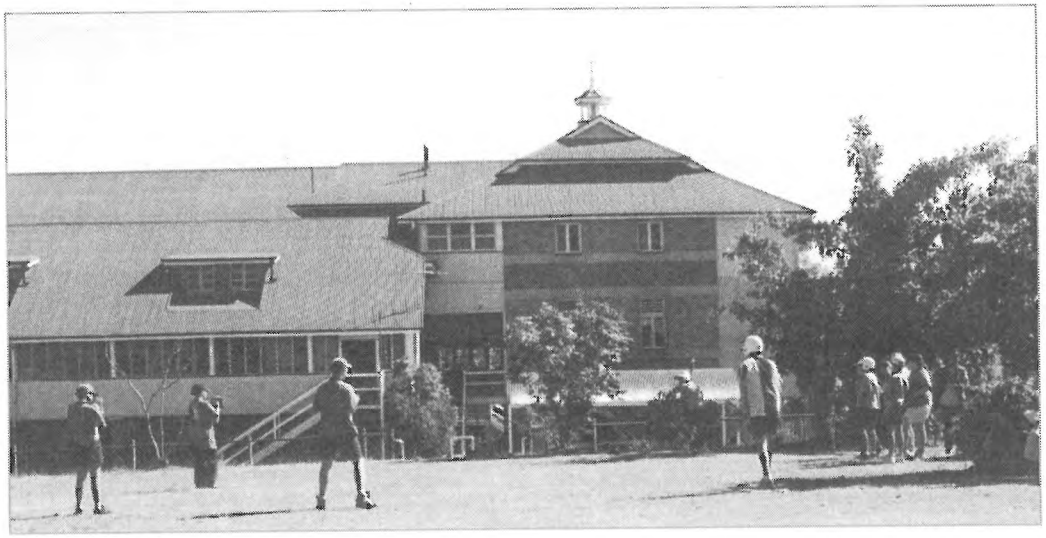

- Premier Wayne Goss ruled out decriminalising cannabis use.
- Eleven miners died in an underground explosion at Moura.

Our Capital City

- Brisbane horse trainer, Vic Rail died from a rare equine virus.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- Rainforest and amphitheatre completed.

Year 5/7 1995.

Notes of 1995

Our Nation

- The Australia Remembers program commemorated the 50th anniversary of the end of the Second World War.
- Pope John Paul II visited Australia and beatified Mother Mary McKillop.
- News Limited revealed plans to establish Super League.
- Australia's America's Cup entrant One Australia, sank off the coast of San Diego.
- Pay TV was launched.
- Centenary of Banjo Paterson's Waltzing Matilda was celebrated at Winton, Qld.
- Euthanasia legislation was introduced in the Northern Territory Parliament.

Our Capital City

- Brisbane Cricket Ground, 'The Gabba' celebrated its centenary.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- LOTE subject changed to Chinese.
- P&C catered for the International Teachers Day launch held at the school.
- Fundraising: fete, art show, participation in the New Farm Festival, running Exhibition parking on land near RNA Showgrounds.

John Faragher - Past Pupil 1971 to 1973 and Principal 1995 to 1996.

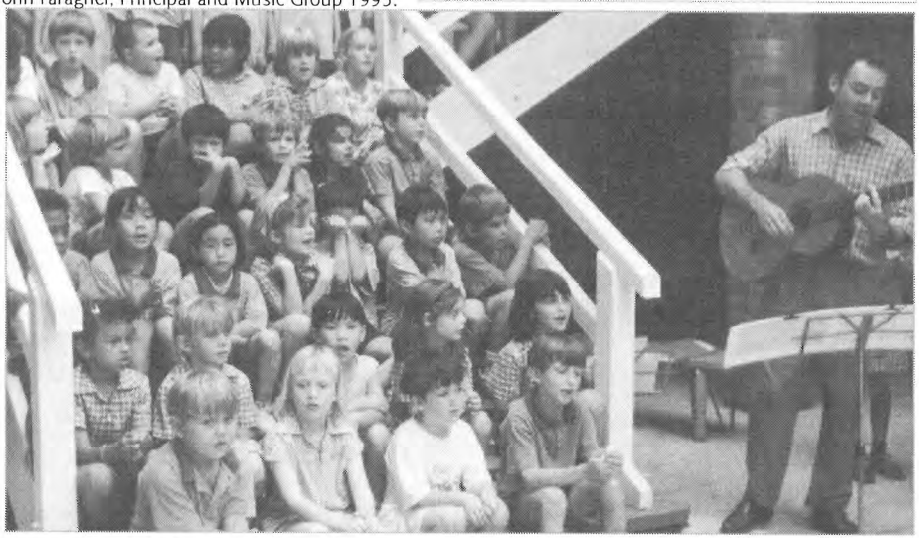

Little did I know in 1973 when I completed my primary schooling at NFSS, that I would be returning 23 years later as Principal to the same fine school.

My first impressions upon my return in Easter 1995 related to the physical size of the school. Everything had shrunk! The 22 metre cricket practice wicket now looked a lot easier to bowl a full length ball on. The fortress like stairway to the top floor of the main building whilst still imposing, was much more easily scaled with adult strides. I had to duck to avoid making head contact with our school's wonderfully distinctive arches below the main building. The then infamous red seat (now blue) outside the Principal's office seemed a lot less imposing and threatening than in days gone by. I could actually sit on it and touch the floor with my feet!

Upon entering the office, it seemed downright disrespectful for me to be taking my place on the other side of the Principal's desk. No matter what anyone says, a Principal's office is always a Principal's office - no matter how hard one tries to make it more "warm and fuzzy". It's a bit like a doctor's surgery without the smell.

How we squeezed 350 students onto the then campus (without the mini-oval) in 1971, was quite amazing. The school population in 1995-96 of 160-180 students seemed just about perfect. I could not resist perusing the school's Corporal Punishment Register to see whether a classroom indiscretion of mine in 1972 had made it into the official records. My name did not appear in the well-thumbed pages of the register, though I can advise that the one stroke of the cane I received (and well deserved), kept me on the straight and narrow for quite a while. I have worked in many schools both small and large, throughout Queensland and

Our Nation

•The Coalition, under John Howard, won the federal election and replaced the Keating Labor Government.

•Television broadcasting in Australia celebrated its 40th anniversary with a series of special programs.

Our State

•Tropical cyclone Barry caused major flooding in areas of Qld stretching from the Gulf of Carpentaria down to the southeastern corner of the State.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

•Funds raised by P&C went towards providing new core classroom readers, home readers for the children and a computer for Year 1 classroom.

like many of my colleagues who have worked here, I believe NFSS is one of the Education Department's best kept secrets. The diversity of the student's backgrounds and the intimacy of the campus make it a wonderful learning environment, both socially and academically. I took great pleasure during by principalship in being part of some exciting projects that have further enhanced the school's environment. The refurbishment of the School Library and the commissioning of the Heal Street landscaped gardens were great moments for the school. A school for which I'm sure many further great moments lie ahead.

Year 6/7 1997.

Notes of 1997

Our Nation

•A landslide at Thredbo in the Snowy Mountains, NSW, caused the destruction of two lodges. 18 people were killed. One survivor, Stuart Diver, was rescued after more than 60 hours trapped under the wreckage.

Our State

•Extensive areas of heavy rainfall associated with monsoonal activity over northern Australia led to widespread flooding in Charleville.

•Tropical cyclones Gillian and Ita later in the period also resulted in serious flooding around the Mackay region as well as around Mt Isa and Cloncurry.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

•After School area refurbished.

•A major campaign was undertaken to keep a full time Janitor/Groundsman with representations to the Minister for Education, Ombudsman, the Courier Mail, Opposition Minister for Education as well as Local, State and Council members. The result was a gain in funding for 13½ hours instead of 3.

LOTE Program 1997.

Notes of 1998

Our Nation

- Conflict on the Australian waterfront erupted when security guards ordered wharf workers off the sites of Patrick Stevedores dock facilities around the world.
- At events around the nation a million or more Australians said "Sorry" for the displacement of 100 000 Aboriginal children, the stolen generation, under past government policies.
- The Sydney to Hobart race buckled under disastrous storms over the Bass Strait where six lives were lost and half the fleet was disabled.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- Students from Years 5 to 7 were entered into National Maths, English and Science Competitions.
- The Scouting in Schools program was implemented.
- Programs for Gifted Students were undertaken through use of the Artist-in-Residence program.
- The P&C were involved in consultations regarding the School Planning Overview, Annual Operational Plan, Management and Learning Technology Plan and Behaviour Management Plan.
- Swimming Club funded installation of flood lights in the grounds and under the buildings.
- Boys toilets were relocated to area under the school. (First application for removal of the boys toilets to this area 19.10.1904.)

Notes of 1999

Our Nation

- The year of the Republican Debate led to a referendum where the majority of the population ruled against a republic.
- The Australian Cricket Team defeated Pakistan in the World Cup Final.
- Cathy Freeman won the world 400m title for the second time.
- John Howard won his hard-fought "GST" (Goods and Services Tax) election.

Our State

- The deregulation of the milk market (the end to set milk prices) meant that Pauls and Dairy Farmers for the first time were in direct competition with supermarket generic brands.

Our Neighbourhood, Our School

- School painted a mural which depicted the New Farm area and carried an indigenous theme. The mural was mounted at New Farm Ferry Terminal.
- School Choir provided choral performances at Newstead House and school community functions; recorded a CD which was made available to families; performed for residents of Bethany Nursing Home in New Farm.

Recollections and Memories

Meg Suttie 1939 - 1944; 1947 - 1977

Remembers: The rapport between staff and pupils and some excellent Head Teachers; the school Inspectors, whose visits were normally faced with some apprehension by staff, and who were not accustomed to friendly welcomes in schools - saying on leaving that they had actually unexpectedly enjoyed their time at New Farm, and praising the fine children and the caring and conscientious staff.

Bev Michels 1961 - 1988 (teacher) 1947 - 1955 (pupil)

Who would have realized when my mother Beryl Marcovich (nee Hicks - past pupil 1924 - 1933) enrolled me at the New Farm State School in 1947 that the school was to be one of the most important parts of my life for the next 50 years.

Ian Michels (past pupil 1947 - 1955) and I met on the first day of school and married in 1964. Our special friendship continues to this day.

During my primary schooling years at New Farm the sound educational guidance I received from the dedicated teachers gave me firm foundations for future success and I was able to continue my education at BSHS and Kelvin Grove Teachers' College and achieve my goal of becoming a teacher. My first teaching appointment in 1961 was to my old school - New Farm. With the help and encouragement so generously given by other staff members, especially Mrs Edith Goforth and Miss Margaret Suttie, I started on a career, 28 years of which would be spent at New Farm.

The years 1972 to 1987 at New Farm formed one of the most rewarding periods of my 37 year teaching career.

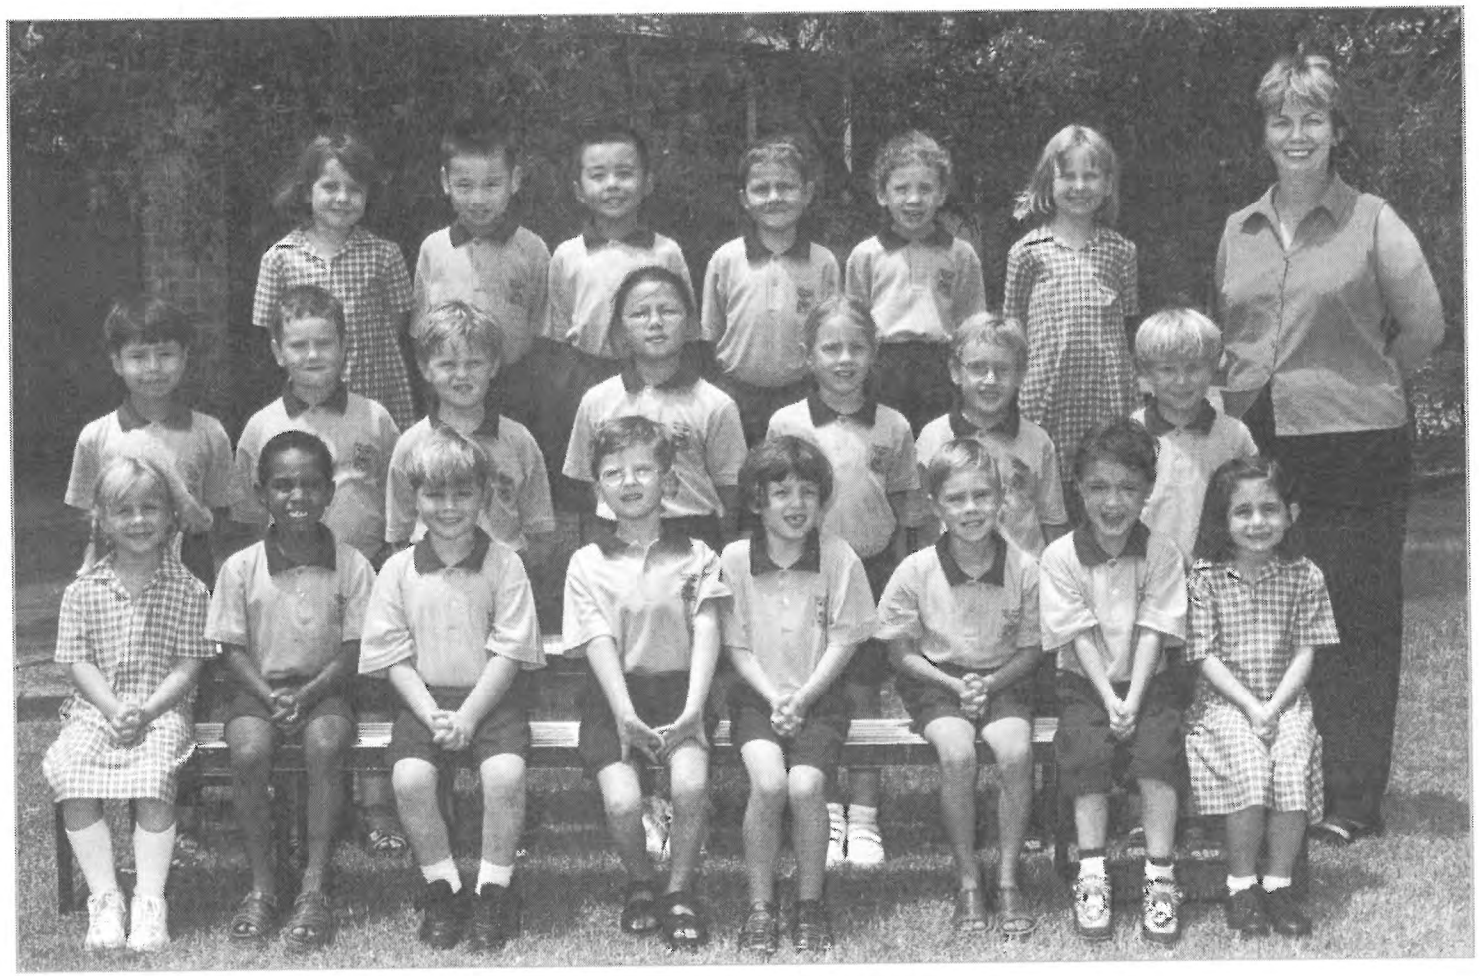

Throughout these years the school community - principal, teachers, teacher aides, parents and children - worked as a team. We all recognized and valued the diversity of our school community and strived in every way to provide a happy, secure, supportive environment, and learning experiences which focused on the needs of each individual child.

It was also a time when there was continuity of staff and many long-serving teachers.

A combination of staff that was young and not so young provided a blend of experience that assured a positive learning environment and a welcoming, caring school community.

It was also a time during which I made life-long friends.

My involvement with the School Committee and P&C Associations commenced when my father, the late John Marcovich, joined the school committee (1949 - 1962).

Year 1 2001.

I experienced first hand the long, enthusiastic and devoted service that parents give to a school community. Whenever there was something to be done Dad was there - working bees, fetes, fundraising functions - always eager to provide hands on support.

Meanwhile Mum worked quietly behind the scenes preparing her many culinary delights and handcrafts for school functions. My parents are only two of the generations of parents who have given so willingly of their time and energy and thus gained remarkable achievements for the school. To all these people my sincerest thanks - without your continuous striving, fund-raising and endless generosity, hundreds of teachers and tens of thousands of children would not have had the benefit of the equipment and facilities throughout the years.

As a member of the Centenary 2001 Committee I have again become actively involved with my old school. It has been a rewarding experience - contacting past pupils and teachers, researching for the Centenary Book and finding memorabilia.

Although much has changed, it is obvious that the quality education that was so evident at New Farm State School over the past century is continuing into the next.

Beryl Farthing 1966 - 1967

It was a happy and close-knit community. Staff were co-operative and helpful and students encouraged to be diligent and well behaved; excellent tone.

Judy Jordan 1965 - 1993

The sombre brick building on a tiny bitumen playground that was New Farm State School in the 60s, 70s and 80s housed a very special school community. Teaching at New Farm in those days was not easy - facilities were few and problems were many and varied, but there was always a caring happy tone about the school - culturally and socially diverse, yet always harmonious and united. Visitors to the school always remarked on the friendly, respectful and co-operative atmosphere. Especially good years were those when Herb Huth was principal - a caring and hard-working man whose totally non-judgmental and respectful attitude towards ALL children was returned in kind. A privilege to have taught at New Farm for 28½ years.

Jocelyn Warland 1968 - 1985

The beautiful children of so many different nationalities, their natural youthful ability to live in harmony, the co-operation and friendliness of the staff and various principals. The atmosphere!!

John Rhodes 1975 - 1990

A happy school; great principal, Herb Huth and a staff who worked together and cared for each other; a multi-cultural school with no racial/ethnic problems; working with children and families who respected what you were doing; great kids!

Christine Barker 1981 - 1986

When I transferred to New Farm I cried, thinking it was a tough school. It was one of the happiest memories I had as a teacher. The kids were lovely and Mr Huth was always supportive and interested in your work and as a person.

Fran Hannah 1981 - 1986 - Friendly supportive staff; team spirit; a happy atmosphere. Everyone valued the school (students/parents/staff).

Robin Spencer 1992 - 1999 - A school that valued diversity and truly attempted to cater for individual differences; a caring school.

Elizabeth Murray 1992 - 1995 - The diverse cultures, the happy smiles and respectful students, the friendly staff.

Elena Dunn 1995 - Memories Poem

I had an excellent time at
New Farm State School
It was my first school in Australia
It was traditional yet progressive
It was friendly, my temporary family
Full of very special people
Fond memories I'll keep forever.

School Insights

"MULTICULTURALISM AT ITS BEST"

A school survey in 1986 revealed that NFSS was made up of children from more than 25 different ethnic backgrounds.

About seven percent of the school's 300 children were aboriginal or islander Australians. For many of the migrant children, NFSS was the first school they attended after arrival in Australia, and most classes in the school had children representing up to 14 different ethnic groups.

A visiting lecturer in teacher education at the time was quoted as saying "New Farm State School is very different from other schools. There is a dedication and sincerity between teachers and pupils that I have not experienced in other schools. It is a caring atmosphere where self-esteem develops strongly".

Eric Nagy, a pupil from 1987-1989 - "While at NFSS I did not notice how multicultural it was, but looking back at photographs I realize it was".

Pirjo Dickenson, a teacher from 1989 to 1997 "NFSS was a multiculturalism at its best. Conflicts were always dealt with on a personal basis, not a racial one. Cultures were accepted, heard, understood. Teachers were forced to look at their teaching styles and expectations. Pedagogy had to be practical and cater for many educational levels whilst still maintaining a unity and common focus in the classroom. A multi-level classroom in each self-contained class".

In 1979, when the term "multicultural education" was very new, it was time for teachers and community to be made fully aware of its implications in the schools. The New Farm teaching staff was withdrawn from classes and with a group of parents and P&C members attended a week of lectures, workshops and informal discussions.

Some of the issues addressed were:

- awareness of the multicultural nature of our society
- philosophy governing education in a multicultural society
- clarification of values and attitudes
- expansion of programs in order to meet special needs
- ways of involving the multicultural community in the school.

At the end of five days the Regional Director of Education - Brisbane North, Dr Ken Robertson made a comment to the effect that the staff at NF didn't need to learn about multicultural

Year 1/2 2001.

Year 2 2001.

education; it was being carried out already, and it was working very well.

Here are some thoughts about this aspect from pupils of the 1950s - 1980s.

Henk de Visser 1952 - 1955

"I think back then how the Aussie kids accepted migrant pupils - at the time no one was biased. Being a cosmopolitan school then, with a lot of pupils being from European backgrounds, everyone got on well."

Charlie Cacciola 1955 - 1959

"Migrated to Australia from Sicily in 1954 and New Farm was our first home. I remember in particular the difference in the two cultures and the difficulty of being accepted - but it worked out alright."

Nunzia (Nancy) Confessore 1972 - 1978

"My siblings and I (six in all) attended NFSS. As immigrants arriving from a non English-speaking country, NFSS was an important place to allow us to assimilate, learn English and become part of a new life and a new community. My memories of my time at New Farm have been constant in my life. The teachers and of course the Principal Mr Huth were all very dedicated to the well-being and education of the students, which went beyond the course of duty. Cultural diversity at NFSS was embraced as both a community and educational focus, which made my and my family's acceptance very easy and comforting. Thank you to my parents for bringing us to such a wonderful country and most of all deciding to settle in New Farm. We couldn't have started our life better than attending NFSS."

Melissa Griffiths 1976 - 1982

"Everyone was friendly and it was a happy community to be included in. The teachers were exceptional. We were all vastly different yet we were treated equally - by teachers, support staff, and each other. NFSS was ahead of its time with regard to what is now termed "multiculturalism". I commenced a Bachelor of Education degree (Early Childhood) last year and was informed that multicultural schools were a recent occurrence. When I informed them that I had attended a school with many nationalities I was basically told that I was mistaken and multicultural schools didn't exist then".

Barbara Millward, a teacher aide during the 1970s and 1980s sums up the nature of the school at that time -

"A close community spirit - caring teachers dedicated to the well-being of the students. Being a multicultural school made us quite unique. We may not have had the most modern of facilities but we turned out some outstanding citizens".

The Teaching of English As a Second Language

In the early 1970s, when the proportion of migrant children at New Farm showed a dramatic increase, specially structured lessons for non-English speakers were introduced by the Education Department. Mrs Alwyn Hayes was the first ESL teacher at New Farm. She commenced a part-time program in 1971, and then full-time in 1972. A few years later the increased numbers of children needing special lessons necessitated the appointment of a second ESL teacher.

The lessons involved the withdrawal of children from classrooms for short periods each day.

With individualized programs in small non-threatening groups, they made rapid progress, and were soon able to take their places confidently in their class groups.

The ESL teachers also worked co-operatively with classroom teachers, and were able to offer advice with strategies and resources to assist in the classroom.

The aim of the ESL program was not only to help non-English speaking background children to learn English quickly, but to develop awareness and understanding of the many cultures represented in the school, and in the wider Australian Society.

In the late 1980s and early 1990s the school enrolment decreased, and the ESL teacher again attended part-time only. This is still the case.

Languages other than English in the Primary Schools

The inclusion of a language other than English in the primary school curriculum is common practice today.

In 1978 New Farm State School was one of the first to begin such a program, following an approach by the Modern Language Teachers' Association. Miss Jocelyn Warland, staff member, enthusiastically agreed to begin teaching Italian to the upper primary classes.

In 1981 the Italian Consulate funded the program, and in 1984 the Community Ethnic Schools' Association was involved. The teaching of Italian language and culture had expanded to include all year levels.

The Education Department's LOTE program was later introduced in primary schools, and then in 1996 the language being taught was changed to Chinese.

MUSIC

In November 2000 the whole school took part in the very successful staging of the musical - "Join the Queue" and "The Billy Goats Gruff", - directed by the music teacher, Caroline Carey. In the 100th year of the school's existence, this was a great finale to a century of music education at New Farm State School.

Year 2/3 2001.

Most people who were educated in Brisbane State Schools in the 1920s to the 1950s remember Mr Alan Moxey as a music teacher and director of combined Primary Schools choirs. Mr Moxey was appointed to New Farm as a classroom teacher in 1923. He remained on the staff until 1934 and during those years he prepared many successful school choirs for eisteddfods, even travelling interstate to take part in competition.

Mrs Hazel Bishop (Robertson) 1927 - 1932

As an eleven-year-old pupil Hazel was accompanist at eisteddfods for the school choir directed by Mr Moxey. She says the New Farm choir won almost every competition it entered. Hazel remembers well one occasion at the City Hall when the Queensland Governor was present, and she was chosen to play the National Anthem for the whole assembly. When Mr Moxey was transferred to Eagle Junction Hazel also moved there in her scholarship year in order to continue her music with Mr Moxey. Mr Moxey later returned to New Farm as visiting music teacher and, with his accompanist Miss Helene Baird, is still well remembered for his work with primary school choirs throughout Brisbane.

Year 3/4 2001.

Helene Baird (now Jones) was herself a pupil at New Farm in 1928. She remembers kindness and good times at the school - both as a child newly arrived in Australia from Northern Ireland, and later when visiting as accompanist with Mr Moxey. "I always felt welcome - the students were willing to learn and we all enjoyed the almost impromptu concerts put on at the end of the year for Christmas. I still remember some of the songs".

In the 1950s and early 1960s classroom teachers managed the school music program, making use of those with special music skills, and as well by following the ABC Schools Radio Programs broadcast through the huge old grey box speakers.

The first full-time teacher of music, Miss Mary Dean, was appointed in 1966, but after her resignation in 1967 the school was again without a specialist music teacher for about twelve years. During this time teachers Jocelyn Warland and Jeanette Faragher made great contributions to the school music program. Several concerts were held and choirs were entered - successfully - in Brisbane Primary School Eisteddfods.

Since 1985 a part-time music teacher has visited the school. In 1980 the instrumental music program commenced, with the first instruments being purchased through a Special Program Schools grant.

Choirs were again formed in the early 1990s and entered in eisteddfods. Today the school has a Junior and a Senior choir.

A school drum and fife (later recorder) band has functioned intermittently since the 1930s.

Children's music has always been an important part of the program at school fetes and other "occasions". In 2000 the New Farm school choir was chosen to sing at the Convention Centre at a Brisbane Bullets opening game.

Over the years many class groups have given pleasure by entertaining the older folk in local nursing homes.

SPORT

The recollections of past pupils from as far back as the 1920s indicate that sport was always important at New Farm State School, and its enjoyment a memorable part of their school days. Many speak of the choices of sports available, and of being part of many - often very successful - representative teams in interschool and interstate competition - and this in spite of the severe limitations imposed by the very small playground.

Over the years many winning teams were fielded in football and basketball (netball), softball, cricket, hockey and soccer. There were also notable individual successes at top level of their chosen sports, from past pupils such as: Robyn Ebbern (played tennis at Wimbledon); Jenny Low, Commonwealth Games athlete (hurdle); Shane Knox, Commonwealth Games (boxing); Jason Pollock, international soccer, and several men who played for Brisbane Rugby League clubs.

The walks to the Valley for swimming and basketball, and to New Farm and Teneriffe Parks, and the CSR grounds for other team practice must have been worth the effort.

In the days before Physical Education teachers were appointed to schools, those staff members who had the ability or the interest became the teachers in charge of sport. These were usually the male teachers or the young ones.

These dedicated teachers, too numerous to name, for years have given many hours to training children in various sports, in organizing matches, and accompanying teams to inter-school competitions. Much of this was done outside school hours and sometimes even at weekends.

Gary Balkin Teacher 1958 - 1959

"My first appointment after graduation from Teacher's College in 1957. I was just eighteen years of age when I arrived. I coached rugby league (3 teams) each year; cricket (senior team) each year; hockey (two teams) first year.

At weekends I coached Merthyr Community sporting teams."

In the early 1970s transport difficulties had made travel to venues for interschool sporting matches almost impossible, and the lack of adequate practice space, or a home ground for fixtures added to the problem.

At this time, therefore, a change was made from inter- to intraschool sport, with emphasis on a skills-based program for every child.

As well, after the school pool was opened in 1966, swimming had become a major activity for all classes from Year 1 to Year 7, and after 1976 the pre-school was also included.

The annual swimming carnival became one of the highlights of the year's Physical Education program.

Year 4/5 2001.

The annual Sports Day or athletics carnival in New Farm Park is always an important and exciting event. From this, the competitors for the State School Zone Sports are selected, and some then go on to compete as district and ultimately State finalists.

Since 1966 a visiting Physical Education teacher has been invaluable in advising and assisting classroom teachers with programs specially designed to make the most of limited facilities. Kay O'Sullivan and Meg Butters are well remembered for their enthusiasm and support during their years at New Farm in organizing Sports Days, and assisting at School camps.

Sporting teams were revived in the early 1990s with soccer being taken by Paul Perrier, the then janitor-groundsman, and netball by a parent, Denise Munro.

Today, many generous parents and staff are involved in coaching interschool sports such as soccer, netball, hockey and cricket. Visiting specialists also operate coaching clinics for cricket, rugby, soccer, volleyball and basketball.

The Years 1 and 2 follow the Jack Capon gross and fine motor skills development program.

Every Friday afternoon Years 3 to 7 participate in an innovative school sports program which includes gymnastics, trampolining, water polo, tennis, volleyball and ballroom dancing.

THE SWIMMING CLUB

The installation of pool lights in 1970 made it possible to commence the operation of the New Farm State School swimming club. This was open to all children in the area, enabling them to participate in a variety of races every Friday night.

Mrs Pat Hockings (Parent and Teacher Aide) was one of the enthusiastic organizers involved with the club.

"From the early days of the swimming club many parents and teachers gave of their time voluntarily to see the children improve their technique from week to week. At the end of the season each child obtained points according to their improved time for each discipline they attempted. Trophy night was always an exciting time as the only person who knew who had won trophies was the dedicated teacher who diligently kept the records. This was quite a time consuming task but was always undertaken with great care.

Every child was awarded a certificate, which recorded their progress for the season. Many parents participated in the running of the club from selling raffle tickets to keeping the time for each competitor. This was a harmonious group who delighted in watching all the children try each week to improve their times. Many children from throughout the district enjoyed the happy atmosphere that prevailed."

The Swimming Club continued through the 1990s with much dedication from Deidre Steel, Gloria and Maurie Locock, Julie Green and Helen Laggeroth. The NFSS Amateur Swimming Club handbook was produced in 1995-96. Swimming club fund-raising resulted in many additions to the school such as the shade structure over the pool, outside school lighting and sporting equipment.

The Swimming Club has continued operation with only a few breaks until the present time, and stands out in past pupils' memories as one of the school's most enjoyable and successful activities.

ANCILLARY STAFF

In addition to the principal and teachers - classroom and full or part-time specialist teachers - many other members of staff work co-operatively to meet the needs of today's busy school and to ensure its smooth and efficient running.

Until around 1970 all administrative and clerical work was done by the Head Teacher and teaching staff. The appointment of New Farm's first clerical assistant, Karen Talbot in 1970, did much to ease this burden.

Also at around this time the school gained much benefit from the appointment of a janitor-groundsman, in those days a full time position.

In 1975 Mrs Barbara Millward was the first in a line of many wonderful classroom teacher-aides.

A special library aide, Mrs Dorothy Williams was appointed at about the same time. In 1982 Mrs Carol Kennedy was appointed as the first of several indigenous teacher aides whose special duties included liaising with Aboriginal families in the school, in assisting with homework programs, and in advising and helping teachers with resources suitable for programs aimed at increasing cultural awareness.

The task of restoring cleanliness and order to the school after each day's work has always been the responsibility of a band of loyal cleaning staff.

LOLLIPOP PEOPLE

For many years, the school P&C had lobbied the Transport Dept and the Brisbane City Council in an endeavour to solve the serious problem of children's safety while crossing the busy, and dangerous, James Street.

In the 1960s, applications for traffic lights, or an overhead pedestrian way, or speed bumps were always refused or a decision deferred. In the early 1980s, the zebra road crossing was eventually painted. The problem was finally overcome in 1984 when official School Crossing Supervisors - lollipop ladies (or gentlemen) - were appointed to State Primary Schools. One of the first to assist the children of New Farm was Gail Mann and in 2001 Ellie Titasey, after 13 years was still carrying the flag.

VOLUNTEERS

Since the 1970s and 1980s when schools became much more open to parents and community members, many generous people have given their time willingly to assist with special tasks within the school, such as listening to children read, supervising swimming, coaching sport, accompanying school parties on excursions, and in general sharing their skills and knowledge with the children.

Training sessions are available for the more specialized tasks within the school, and these also benefit when helping children at home. Parents are encouraged to play an active role in their children's education, to understand how their children learn and how a classroom operates.

LIBRARY

As was the case for most primary schools for the first half of the 20th century, New Farm did not possess a proper library. Extra reading material for children was usually held in a cupboard in each classroom.

The first "real library", housed in a porch area on the top floor was established in the early 1950s by Head Teacher, Mr R Cochrane. It was very well funded and supported by the School Committee.

Subsequently the library was moved downstairs and gradually enlarged and improved over several years, with major changes being made in 1969, when many more up-to-date books, new furniture and equipment and a film strip projector were purchased.

In 1970 the Federal Government began giving library grants to schools and with very generous supplement from the P&C, the New Farm State School library was enlarged and many more resources added. The first full-time teacher-librarian, Mrs Gillian Neary, was appointed in 1975.

In the 1970s and 1980s the concept of the library as a silent area for selecting books changed.

Barbara Millward, teacher-aide at the time, whose work included assisting in the library, says:

"The library was a far cry from the old cupboard in the corner. It was a busy, happy area, always full of children at lunch-time - reading, playing games, listening to stories, researching, borrowing, and setting up displays".

During the 1980s the teacher's resource section was greatly expanded and included books, microfiche filmstrips, video and audio tapes and picture files.

With the declining school enrolment through the late 1980s and 1990s, the teacher-librarian's position was reduced to part-time, as it is at present.

Today the school has most of the facilities of modern times - things which could not have been dreamed of in 1901. The children are able to use computers, accessing information via the internet, and using the computer's word-processing facilities. This can be done through the computers in each classroom. The library catalogue system is currently being computerised.

The area which is today occupied by the library, is the space created when the room dividing walls were removed in 1958, to provide a large enough area for all the children to gather.
It is today used for school assemblies, held on one day per week. The new style of assembly was introduced by Principal Bob Charters in 1991, and is very different from the old formal parades in the hot school grounds.
At assembly the National Anthem is still sung, and the school creed recited:

I'm proud of who I am
And where I'm from
I love my country and my school
I respect my teachers and my friends
May I do my best to enjoy my time at school
To be a good friend
To be honest and responsible
And to learn

OURS THE FUTURE

The principal's report and awards are given, and groups of children or classes are invited to share activities and achievements with the whole school.
The library, a living place, is also used for visiting Arts Council performances, for displaying class projects, and in 2000 was the site for the schools' inaugural Science Fair.
